ANOTHER TRUST BUSTED

Judge Landis Dissolves the Furniture

Combination. Chicago, Aug. 6.—The American furniture trust has been put out of the running by United States District Judge Landis, who, Saturday, affixed a $29,240,000 fine to the Standard Oil trust. The judge entered a formal order permanently enjoining the American Seating company, A. H. Andrews members of what was known as the another trust agreement.

The furniture trust was indicted under the Sherman anti-trust law and | in a dispute over some logs. when the case came up all except one concern, the E. H. Stafford company, pleaded non-contenders. Judge Landis imposed comparatively small fines, on strenuous pleas of bad business and losses, the total amount aggregating $43,000.

Judge Landis Refused Voliva's Plea | While Making No Promises to Find the Pole, Peary Is Relying on the Aid of Past Experience.

> New York, Aug. 6.-Stronger than ever in her hull, and better equipped generally for her battle with the Arctic ice floes, Commander Peary's steamer, "Roosevelt," lies at Shooters' on her second trip in search of the North pole. Since she returned from her last voyage the Roosevelt has new main topmast sent aloft. A new rudder and rudder post have replaced those crushed by the ice. On deck a new house has been built to furnish better living quarters for the crew of twenty men, all of whom have been shipped for the new expedition. The engines have received a general overhauling, and two new Scotch boilers have been installed.

north knows that to say he will do a certain thing up there, is madness. I have learned many lessons from my other trips, especially my last one, and I shall profit by all these experiences. Whether I shall find the North pole or not is a question which will not be answered until I have either reached it or failed. It will not be because I am not prepared, or do not the following estimates and amounts for try, if I do not succeed in attaining the object for which I am going." Asked if he should ever try again if not successful this time, Commander Peary said: "The newspapers have credited me with saying that I shall never make the attempt again I do not say whether I shall or not Future circumstances and conditions only will govern me in that. "I am already over three weeks late in starting and it is very possible that before I finally get away from New York I shall be four weeks behind. From Sydney, I shall go to Cape York, which point I expect to reach this year in ten days from Sydney. From there I shall carry out the program which has already been published."

Asked if he had ample funds for carrying out the expedition, Commander Peary replied: "I will say one thing, and that is, that the delays in the repairs on the boilers of the Roosevelt have been aggravating and are now worrying me a great deal more than the money with which to finance the expedition.'

Commander Peary appeared to be in rugged health and was full of enthusiasm for the trip.

of the stock market has been greatly intensified. Although the levying of maximum penalties on the Standard Oil company on the convictions for rebating had been discussed as a possibility and had figured in the speculation on Friday, the actual sentence of the court was not known in Wall street on Saturday in time to afford opportunity for market operations based on it. The sentimental effect of the incident was increased by the publication over Monday of the report of the commissioner of corporations, arraigning the Standard Oil company for its business methods and its exorbitant profits. The effect was to revive the conviction of the determination of the federal administration to push the pursuit of corporations with unabated vigor. From the viewpoint of capital, great influence has been attributed to this course in causing the deadlock in seeking new capital for enterprises. Speculative sentiment has been discouraged by the prospect offered of that factor being brought into prominence again.

DEATH OF A. G. SMITH

Conspicuous Figure in Indiana Political Life Passes Away.

Indianapolis, Aug. 6.—Alonzo Greene Smith, one of the best known members of the Indianapolis bar, is dead at his served in the sessions of 1885 and clue to the criminal. 1887, acting as president in the latter session. At the session of 1889 he was elected secretary of the senate. In 1890 he was elected attorney-general of Indiana and served from Nov. 22 of that year to Nov. 21, 1892, and of trainmen on the Colorado and in 1892 was re-elected for another Southern railroad. It is feared that attorney-general he removed to this no developments in that direction city, which, since that time, has con- have occurred. tinuously been his home. As attorneygeneral Mr. Smith was largely instrumental in the passage of the tax law which put a just taxation upon railroads, telegraph and telephone companies and other corporations that had before that time not borne their due share of taxation. The contest to maintain this law was carried by Mr. Smith through all the courts, including the supreme court of the United States and was sustained. As a result of this law Indiana is now paying off its state debt. His course in the office of attorney-general was that of 86c. Corn-No. 2, 53c. Oats-No. a thoroughly zealous official and remixed, 45c. Hay-Clover, $12.00 sulted in making him one of the strongest men at the bar in his knowledge of fundamental law. The legal triumphs of the state during this period were largely due to the indefatigable perseverance and energy of Mr. Smith.

One of the most exciting episodes in his career occurred in 1887, when, by the resignation of Mahlon D. Manson, lieutenant-governor, he became president of the senate. It was at this session that David Turple, caucus nominee of the Democratic members, pitted against Benjamin Harrison, was elected to the United States senate, a result made possible in large measure by the coolness and dogged obstinacy of Mr. Smith, whose doorkeepers ejected from the senate the late Colonel Robertson, who had been elected lieutenant-governor in the off year of 1886, and who vainly attempted to preside over the destinies of the
